Southport Anaesthetic Specialists is a small medical practice where a number of consultants and their secretaries share offices and an open plan reception area. Speech privacy was compromised whenever health information was gathered at the reception desk and via telephone. Soundmask installed five "cut in" ceiling speakers and a shelf generator, solving the practice's speech privacy problems and ensuring that the practice complies with Health Privacy legislation.

Dr David Wylie, Senior Associate comments:

"Acceptance by the secretarial staff has been good, and there is an opinion that telephone privacy in particular has been particularly enhanced. Control of the ambient sound is very easy, and a gradual increase in volume has been well tolerated. Many thanks to Soundmask Australia."
